Your Three Days Ltd Consultancy Service

'It really was the epitome of bespoke and consequently meant all the more. We will treasure the words forever, knowing they were just for us. We couldn't have asked for more. So, so, so very worth it.'

Becky and Ric

A bespoke element for a unique occasion.

Vows and rings

Of all the ceremony elements I have written in my career so far, I am often proudest of the bespoke vows and exchanges of rings I have created with so many couples. It's a delightful creative process, unique in itself, full of reflection, discussion and feeling. Often, couples fall in love with the experience itself. Each resulting set of vows and exchange of rings is entirely original and there is nothing better to have at the heart of your day. So, whether you want to make a real statement or say a lot with a little, I can help.

Readings

The right reading in any ceremony can be something very special. It can add a new voice and viewpoint. It can encapsulate the essence of a child, a couple or a family. It can lift the entire occasion beyond expectation. When a bespoke reading is created, this is all made possible – and more. Whether we would like to just focus on capturing your perspectives as a couple, embrace a family setting or involve your loved ones' contributions in a themed approach, the unique creative process will also really enrich the build up to the event itself.

Story so far

The best celebrations all have one vital thing in common: they all truly capture the essence of who they are for. They do their story justice. It sounds simple doesn't it? It isn't, it means something different in every case, but getting it absolutely right is a fascinating, enjoyable and satisfying process. If you would like the story of your love or family life created for a wedding, christening/naming or other event you have planned, I can help. Working with you, I would gather everything needed to tell your story, your way. There's nothing better on such a life defining day.

I create wholly bespoke writing for people looking for something exceptional, authentic and entirely personal.

Clients all over the country can now commission a bespoke element to grace their own wedding or event. My work is entirely focused on the people at its heart, so is non-religious in nature, but would thrive in any setting.

My testimonials speak to the joyful, profound and lasting effect this unique creative process can have. Clients often contribute both individually and jointly, thereby keeping some aspects a surprise and making their first reading of the final text even more emotional. There's nothing like it.

Six classic bespoke elements are profiled in this brochure. In each case, you'll find some of their key features outlined. As you'll see from the examples on my site, it's also possible to create an original element to complement almost any occasion, so if you can't see what you're looking for here, just let me know. That's the beauty of bespoke.

I price each commission individually and offer flexible payment plans - gift vouchers are also available.

I would be delighted to answer any questions you may have.

Well-wishing

Many of us seek that extra certain something to make an important event or occasion even more memorable. Often, an experience wins over the material; the personal outshines the commonplace. My bespoke well-wishings are unique pieces of writing, often kept as a surprise, created by collecting different people's viewpoints on the same subject: maybe a couple getting married, an anniversary or a significant birthday. Whether featuring at the end of a ceremony, mid wedding reception or given as a gift, they are as rewarding and remarkable as they are versatile.

Toasts and speeches

Whilst it is always an honour to be asked, many people soon feel the pressure when preparing a speech or toast for a once in a lifetime event. Whether you are a bride or groom trying to capture all you feel; a happy couple wishing to say something authentic, original and meaningful to one another on your big day or a parent looking to welcome your new daughter/son-in-law on behalf of your whole family with a few poignant and well-chosen words - together we can make the creative process a treat and the end result a triumph.

Eulogy

Putting your feelings for a loved one into words can seem an impossible challenge, particularly when you're experiencing your own emotional upheaval after the loss of a family member or friend. At a time like this, I can offer my empathy, skill and years of experience to help make your task that little bit easier. Whether we just work in partnership or involve a wider circle of contributors to our writing, together we can create a text that is apt, touching and true to life, enabling you to pay fitting tribute in just the right way.
